

Director Tips, Tricks, & Techniques

A Cursor Pointing Tip

Don't you just hate it when you are pointing to an item on an SSG with your mouse and an objectionable message pops up to cover that to which you are pointing. Below is an example from Toolkit.

Solution:

When you move your mouse cursor onto the SSG, press the <ALT> key. The black arrow turns back into your nice big red arrow cursor for your pointing pleasure without any of the annoying pop up reminders.

This trick works in the all other Toolkit windows and forms as well as in many other applications on your computer. This should improve the quality and ease of your instructing.